

U.S. Dairy Trade: What Does the U.S. Want?

Marc A.H. Beck Executive vice president, U.S. Dairy Export Council

XI Dairy Olympics St. Petersburg May 27, 2019

Today's Agenda

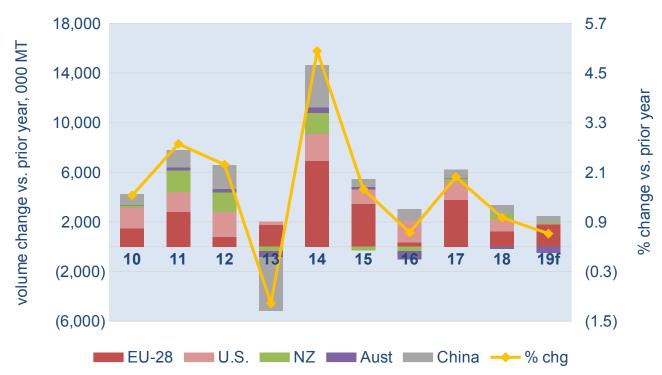

- Global markets 2019
- What does the United States want?

World Milk Production Growth Has Decelerated

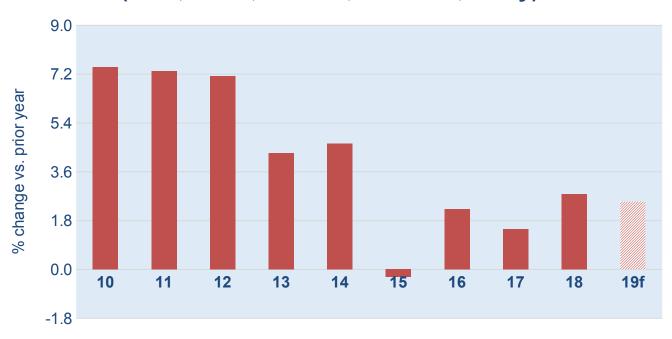

Milk production change vs. prior year

World Trade: 2018 Growth Was a 5-Year High

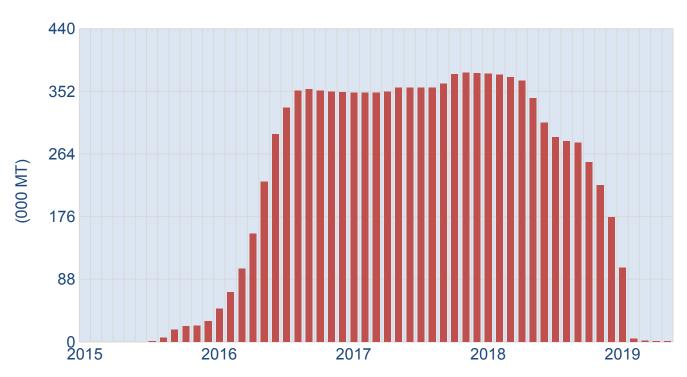

Global trade - change from prior year (SMP, WMP, cheese, butterfat, whey)

Intervention (Buffer) Stocks of Powder are Gone

EU Intervention SMP Inventories

Better Balance in 2019

- •Slower supply growth, especially from EU and U.S.
- Good demand growth
- Absence of intervention stocks

Prices Improved, But Don't Expect a Break Out ... Yet

Average World Price (WMP, Butterfat, SMP, Cheese - trade weighted)

What Does the U.S. Want?

U.S. industry model is based on growth ...

... and we need to export to continue growing

U.S. Wants Transparency and Fair Trade

- Transparency
- Science-based rules
- A way to deal with NTBs
- Consistent application of rules
- Fair access

Closing Thoughts

- Markets will be more balanced in 2019, which could lead to some volatility in tactical purchasing.
- U.S. industry is focused on growth, and we need exports to make that happen.
- Need to improve access to import markets to capitalize on growing dairy consumption.
